CONTINUING EDUCATOR TRAINING

For Early Educators - Individuals & Teams

PYRAMID MODEL AUSTRALIA

The Pyramid Model promotes high quality evidence-based early educator practice (in line with the Early Years Learning Framework and the National Quality Standards). Educators' use of Pyramid Model practices increases the social-emotional competencies of all children, of the group as a whole, and of children with behavioural challenges. In addition, Pyramid Model practices support families with their parenting and enhance individual educator practices and educators' team-work. Australian evidence supports Pyramid Model practices as having positive impacts on outcomes for children, educators, educator teams and families.

3a. Online Coaching support The online coaching provides reading revision, clarification of proposed strategies and discussion with participant educators about any issues/queries they have around using the strategies. A maximum of 8 educators per session allows for everyone to contribute in this 1 ½ hour session.

- Practice-based coaching during and after training: $380/session/team

3b. Face-to-face coaching support – each session involves observation for two hours including, if requested by the educator, direct prompting or modelling of approaches, followed by a ½-1 hour discussion after the session about topics that arise and then an email confirmatory follow-up. Practice-based coaching is driven by the educator, highly respectful of them, their learning style, needs and circumstances. The number of sessions depends on funding and needs. More than one session is preferable, usually 6-16. The sessions would be at regular intervals such as weekly, fortnightly or monthly. These sessions include 'running' T-POT observations which are brief Teaching Pyramid Observation Tool (TPOT; TPITOS) observations.

- $660 face-to-face coaching (3.5 hours incl email follow-up).

3c. Assessment of educator implementation of practices involves a more formalised T-POT observation (Teaching Pyramid Observation Tool) which includes 2 hours observation and a follow up ½ hour interview. A total of at least 5 hours time is required, including a follow-up email and report. $885 per formal assessment.
